

Ellen Tinkham College Impact Report - Devon

Evaluation Results

As part of each project Tender delivers, we robustly evaluate the changes in attitude that identify the impact of our work through surveys. We also gather information from young people about their understanding of healthy and unhealthy friendships and relationships.

Below is a set of results from this process, highlighting the impact our work had on 10 students at Ellen Tinkham College in Devon.

After the project, in response to the question, 'did you like doing this project':

Q9 Did you like doing this project?

- 90% of the Young People reported that they liked doing the project.
- 90% of the Young People reported that they had learnt from the project.
- 100% of the Young People who responded stated that when at college they could talk to their teachers as well as a range of other staff, if someone makes them feel unsafe.
- 100% of the Young People who responded stated that, when at home, they could talk to their parents or a grandparent if someone makes them feel unsafe.

Project Efficacy

Following the project, facilitators were delighted to see that 100% of respondents were able to identify what constituted a healthy or an unhealthy relationship. Some responses about what made a good relationship included:

“A boyfriend who is nice.”

“Happy and Trust.”

“Being with my boyfriend and being kind.”

“Best friends hanging out.”

Students were also educated about the warning signs of an unhealthy relationship:

- 90% of the Young People identified 10 out of 12 warning signs that a relationship might be unhealthy, with 10% identifying all 12.
- 100% of the Young People identified that it is never ok to be violent to someone.

Q6 What are the warning signs that a relationship might be unhealthy?

When asked if they had one thought about what they had learnt during the project, students gave a range of responses:

“Good friendship is important.”

“The words we wrote in the love hearts.”

“Types of relationships.”

“Healthy relationships.”

“More about relationships.”

We look forward to working with you again soon.
